WASHINGTON (AP) — Mobilization of National Guard and reserve units was described as a possibility today by Deputy Secretary of Defense Roswell Gilpatric.

Gilpatric, discussing at a news conference the plans for meeting what he termed the new "menacing attitude" of Russia on the issue of Berlin and other subjects, said any U.S. increase in conventional military forces within the next six months, obviously would have to come from the National Guard and reserves.

Gilpatric said no specific recommendation has been made to President Kennedy to call up the reserves, but added that this "obviously is one of the many possibilities."

Such units, Gilpatric said, could be drawn into federal service within six months—the time in which the Communists are expected to push the Berlin crisis to a peak.

NLR Voters to Vote on Bonds

NORTH LITTLE ROCK (AP)—North Little Rock voters decide today whether to float $1 million in bonds to finance the city's purchase of the Maumelle Ordnance Works for use as an industrial park. Man Survives a Week on Hot Desert

CAMP IRWIN, Calif. (AP)—A 53-year-old man with an artificial leg, stranded for a week without food in searing desert heat says his dog saved his life.

Ramon C. Miller, a furniture buyer from Fresno, was found Monday by two ordnance inspectors in a remote section of the Camp Irwin military reservation, 85 miles northeast of San Bernardino.

He said he took a shortcut across the Mojave Desert July 4 then ran out of gas south of Death Valley and northeast of Barstow. Doctors at the camp hospital said both Miller and his dog, Gretchen, were in remarkably good condition and probably will leave the hospital today.

"I was just about ready to give up," Miller said. "I never would have made it if it hadn't been for Gretchen." He said the dog defended him from coyotes as he fled in a desert cave.

Miller said he took a wrong road last Tuesday night while en route from Phoenix to Fresno.

"I stayed by my truck all night after we ran out of gas," he said. "The road looked pretty well traveled so we took off on foot the next day to look for a place to buy gas."

"Nobody came along. So we walked six or seven hours. After a while I saw a sign that said 'Springs' and followed a path in it we reached the springs, about noon Wednesday."

They took shelter in a cave at the springs, where there was water. They were found there by Richard Friemuth and Phil Denning, who were inspecting the Irwin Firing Range.

Miller estimated he walked 15 miles to the spring. He had bruises on the stump of his left leg, lost in an auto accident. The dog was bruised and scarred from fights with animals.

Temperatures in the area where Miller was found often exceed 120 degrees said Maj. John Waters, executive officer of the Irwin Army Hospital.

Astronaut Is Picked for July 16 Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The astronaut selected to make America's second manned space flight began his final week of preparation today, running through a series of practice missions in a land-locked spacecraft.

Speculation here centered on Air Force Capt. Virgil I. Grissom as the man most likely to make the trip, with Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., as the backup pilot. Both men are undergoing training in case the No. 1 choice is unable to make the suborbital flight.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has announced only that the flight will be attempted during the week of July 16, and declined any comment on the name of the astronaut who will follow the trail blazed on May 5 by Navy Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr. Sources report July 16 is the scheduled launch date.

The flight essentially will duplicate that of Shepard, whose space capsule hit 116 miles high and landed 302 miles down the Atlantic range.

Some changes have been made in the capsule, and the pilot will make fewer observations than Shepard. But main purpose of the mission will be to give another astronaut a brief taste of space flight. The space agency wants to have at least four pilots trained for orbital flights scheduled to begin late this year or early in 1962.

Grissom, 35, is from Mitchell, Ind. Glenn, 39, who was Shepard's backup is a native of New Concord, Ohio.

Three major changes have been made in the spacecraft, partly based on recommendations by Shepard after his pioneer journey.

They are:

1. A new, larger observation window to replace two viewpoints which Shepard found inadequate.
2. A more advanced manual control system for steering the spacecraft. It will be in addition to the manual system used by Shepard.
3. A new escape hatch with 70 explosive bolts for a more rapid escape from the vehicle in an emergency.

Light local showers Monday spread from Montana into Minnesota but the rainfall was not heavy enough to bring much relief to the dry farm lands. However, some fairly heavy rain fell in a few places in the Dakotas, with nearly one-half inch at Grand Forks, N.D.

Scattered rain showers were indicated during the day in a broad area from the Central Plains northeastward through the upper and middle Mississippi Valley into the Great Lakes region.

There were other wet spots during the night. Thunderstorms hit New Mexico and the Texas Panhandle and a heavy rain and hail storm pelted rural areas north of Norfolk, Neb.

More thundershowers sprinkled areas along the Gulf Coast but generally dry weather was reported in other parts of the country.

Hot weather continued in the central and south Pacific Coast and the southern Plateau regions.

Shower in Drought Area Help

Showers dampened the drought-stricken areas of the Dakotas during the night and more rain was in prospect for other sections in the parched upper plains into the middle and upper Mississippi Valley.

Hit by Snow

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany (AP) — Twenty inches of new snow have fallen on the Zugspitze, Germany's highest mountain, during the last 48 hours. Temperatures, which last week reached unusual highs, were at times below freezing in the Bavarian Alps over the weekend.

Surrounding a "hot cell" in the nation's center, temperatures for July radiate out in pattern shown in map above.

Below normal rainfall will be the rule in much of nation during July, along with smaller areas of normal and above.

Recalls Day When Allies Hit Palermo

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Death lay waiting around the corner on the road to Palermo.

It was just 11 years ago this week that the Americans and British landed in Sicily. It was a bright, brief, bitter campaign that in 39 days broke the Axis airpower in the eastern Mediterranean and gave the Allies a stepping stone to Italy.

The Battle of Sicily has long been swallowed up in the larger events of World War II. The public may remember it for only two fouls—an angry Gen. Patton slapping a private to startle him out of shellshock, the shooting down by the U.S. Navy of more than a score of our own paratroop-laden aircraft.

Each man who fought there, of course, has his own memories: The smell of the unburied dead in the bombed ruins, the slimy, shimmering heat, the sweet taste of watermelons plucked warm from the vines, weeping Sicilian women as the long lines of Italian soldiers walked or rode cheerfully into surrender, glad to be out of a war they didn't want to be in, the pinch-faced children's hands held out for bread.

But I remember Sicily most for a rare combat vignette you see seldom on sprawling battlefields, where individual actions usually are lost sight of.

It happened in a winding mountain gorge on the road to Palermo the Sicilian capital.

A German engineer, his hands upraised, his myopic eyes wide in fear, stumbled from the underbrush to give himself up to a U.S. armored column.

"There is a 90 mm. gun around the next bend in the road," he warned.

What should the American commander, Brig. Gen. Maurice Rose do? Believe his captive or not? Rose, one of the ablest and most handsome tank leaders in the Army, was under strong pressure from Gen. Patton to get into Palermo at the earliest possible hour.

But he unhesitatingly halted.

Urethane Is a Word of Wonders

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Urethane is a word that you, like most people, may have learned only recently—but fast.

Whether it's beds or brassieres, furniture upholstery or bathing suits, instrument cradles for outer space missiles or washable powder puffs—flexible or rigid urethane foam is quickly moving from a novelty to a commonplace.

Your daughter may have a doll whose urethane texture feels like flesh. Or your son may have long urethane shoes with which he can walk on water. Or you may know urethane as the filter in your air conditioner, or as a screen that is labeled puncture proof.

Production and sales volume has rocketed since 1958. Flexible foam manufacturers produced 34 million pounds that year, and rigid foam makers turned out 4 million pounds. Last year flexible foam output was around 85 million and rigid foam 14 million pounds.

This year Olin-Malheisen chemical officials estimate industry production of flexible will reach 100 million and rigid 20 million pounds.

The 50 producers of flexible foam have the capacity, if their machines were to run round the clock, to turn out 4.5 billion pounds a year. Industry sources say this would be enough to cover Lake Michigan, although they don't say why anyone should want to.

Urethane foam is made by adding a polyether and toluene diisocyanate and a catalyst to water and agitating the mixture. Among the major chemical suppliers are Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Union Carbide, Dow, Mobay and Olin.

Olin officials predict industry output of flexible foam will hit 250 million pounds by 1965 and rigid foam nearly 90 million pounds.

The big reason for the optimism, according to officials of the National Aniline division of Allied Chemical is that the end uses of flexible urethane are as varied and flexible as the material itself.

They cite the near weightless insulation lining of a coat or jacket, long wearing urethane shoe heels and inner lining of shoes.

And coming up fast is usage for foundation garments. The makers say bathing suits of the material can be mailed in an ordinary airmail envelope but are still capable of handling curves with authority.

Along with the washable powder puff that can be cut to fit any compact, your wife may use a urethane hair curler that is termed easy to sleep on.

If boating is your pleasure, the urethane boaters are estimating that this year 100,000 pleasure boats will be made of rigid urethane foam and 300,000 will be made of flexible urethane.

Religion Dims Education Bill

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas Education Commissioner Arch W. Ford says the proposed aid to education bill's chances of passing have been dimmed by the religious issue.

"It has boiled down to a church versus state issue," Ford said of the bill with its amendment to bring church supported schools within the scope of the bill.

Ford said he would review the issues and speculate on the future of the bill next week in a speech to the first annual Public School Superintendents' Workshop here.

The two-day meeting opens Monday.

Young Girl Found After Three Days

SEASIDE, Ore. (AP)—Twelve-year-old Becky Roeber—lost on the rocky Oregon Coast—survived a three-day ordeal without food and with only a trickle of water from a spring until a during helicopter crew flew through fog to her rescue.

Becky, who comes from Bell-air, Tex., is recuperating in a hospital here today.

The helicopter crew approached perilously close to the cliffs to land on a narrow and rocky beach where the girl was found Monday.

"If I had a million dollars," said Mrs. William Roeber, the girl's mother, "I couldn't begin to repay all the wonderful people who offered us their help."

Said her father: "Neither Becky's mother nor her grandfather nor I had ever given up hope. I just couldn't believe she had fallen into the ocean."

Becky's grandfather, Peter Long, had flown to the Oregon Coast from Houston, Tex., when he learned she was missing. He led search parties throughout the night Sunday.

She was spotted by a fisherman, Uno Rautio of Seaside.

"She saw me before I saw her," Rautio said. "She called for help and I knew who she was. I had the little lost girl in the back of my mind. I knew no one had given this particular area a thorough search."

Rautio said he gave her some food and water, carried her to the shelter of a large rock, then ran and yelled for help.

His shouts were heard by a nearby search party, and rescuers converged on the beach area. Eight men made their way, half sliding, down the precarious incline to the beach.

Then the helicopter, piloted by 1st Lt. Dennis M. Chase, Portland, ducked through a hole in the fog bank and skimmed over the ocean waters to take the girl to safety.

It still was not clear late Monday how Becky arrived at the narrow strip of beach.

The Seaside doctor who treated her, Frederick Rawls, said that she was in good condition, except that she was "badly dehydrated" from lack of water.

DOROTHY DIX

Her Married Life Far From Happy

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: When I was a little girl my grandmother called me "Dorothy Dix" because my first name is Dorothy and because I always had serious and thoughtful words of advice for my own friends as well as the adults. Now, after all these years, I am turning to you for advice. At 40, my marriage, never happy, is in shambles. For 15 years I've loved my husband completely, cared for him, spoiled him and been a helpmate in every sense but, alas, in no avail. He is never home at meal time, drools in taverns till all hours, pinches pennies with me and the children but squanders money on himself and is currently out of work. I am an excellent cook, devoted mother and sew well but hate housework, which symbolizes all the meanness and ugliness of my married life. It was bad enough when I stayed home but now that I work as a registered nurse, it is even times worse. My husband does nothing to make things easier. I need,

Dear Helen: I am a mother who is forced to work. This necessitates putting my four-year-old daughter in Nursery School. After two years, she still fights like a little wild cat every morning, because she doesn't want to go. Her teacher has told me it is just an act and that she is perfectly happy at school. I have changed schools twice already but that doesn't seem to be the answer. I begin to feel like Mrs. Simon Legree, in forcing her to go against her will. Am I doing the wrong thing? —Despairing Mother

Dear Despairing Mother: Off hand, I would say you were doing the only thing possible — you being the family headliner. Since it's been the same situation with two different schools, I'd be inclined to agree with the teacher that your little girl is putting on an act. But, for your own peace of mind, why not explain the situation to your boss and ask for a day off to visit the school and see for yourself what's what. At best, the circumstances are hard. I'm sorry for you both but, take heart. A child often gets a better start in a first-rate nursery school than at home. —

Dear Helen: I am a 16-year old identical twin. Ever since Junior High we have consistently competed against one another. Now she is taking away my boy friend. When I attempt to discuss this rivalry between us, she shrugs her shoulder and walks off. Our mother sides with my sister, not. What can I do? —Disgraced Twin Dear Twin: For your own and your family's peace of mind you should be separated. It is an accepted fact among psychologists that identical twins are always in conflict, whether they admit it or not. Inevitably one strives to dominate (and destroy) the other. A series of frustrating trial and error episodes, she found separation the only answer.

close a stamped, self-addressed envelope and address her care at this newspaper. Helpful leaflets available.

Baeball's All Star Game Is Slated Today

By JOE REICHLER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Smarting over three beatings in two years and nine defeats in the last 13 games, the American League was determined to reap revenge on the Nationals in today's All-Star game.

The game, No. 30 in the inter-league rivalry, was scheduled for a 1 p.m. Pacific Daylight Time start before a capacity 42,000-plus audience at Candlestick Park with millions of additional baseball fans watching on a national TV hookup. A second All-Star game will be played July 31 in Boston.

Paul Richards, the Baltimore manager picked to pilot the American League squad, sounded his circuit's keynote when he said: "I didn't come here to put on a show. I'm going to keep my starters in the game as long as I can and make changes only when it means winning the game. Heck, if we're not out to win, then we should discontinue the All-Star game."

Danny Murtaugh, the National League manager, also stressed winning but not nearly as strongly as Richards.

"Naturally, our prime objective is to win," he said, "but I believe we owe it to the people to use as many All-Star players as possible."

Murtaugh included Eddie Mathews in his starting lineup, but there was a strong possibility that the Milwaukee third baseman might be sidelined in favor of Ken Boyer of the St. Louis Cardinals. Mathews suffered a spike wound in a collision with Daryl Spencer of Los Angeles last week, requiring 14 stitches on his right knee.

An early southpaw duel was assured when Richards named Whitey Ford of the New York Yankees 16-game winner, to open for the Americans and Murtaugh nominated Warren Spahn, the 40-year-old ace of the Milwaukee Braves.

Murtaugh said he would follow Spahn with right-hander Bob Purkey of Cincinnati and Elroy Face of his own Pittsburgh team but Richards declared he had not decided on his pitchers after the third inning.

"All I'm interested in is winning," Richards repeated. "That's why I didn't stick to the custom of selecting the runner-ups in the player voting. I picked the men who would give me a balanced squad."

Richards obviously as convinced that his starting lineup consisting of Johnny Temple, Norm Cash, Mickey Mantle, Roger Maris, Rocky Colavito, Tony Kubek, John Romano and Brooks Robinson represented the best the American League had to offer.

Murtaugh took a more conciliatory attitude.

"I appreciate Richards' thinking," he said, "but he has different ideas on the subject. I believe the National League has boys with recognized ability and regardless of how they came out in the voting, we won't weaken the team no matter who we play."

Murtaugh's starting lineup included Maury Wills, Matthews or Buyer, Willie Mays, Orlando Cepeda, Roberto Clemente, Bill White, Frank Bolling, and Smokey Burgess. Each squad had three left-handed and one switch hitter.

"Left-handed power hitters have a definite advantage here," said Murtaugh. "There is a sort of jet-stream that helps carry the ball out over the right field fence. I think the American League, despite such power hitters as Mantle and Maris, has no advantage because Mays, Cepeda and Clemente can hit the ball over all fences with equal power."

Joe Ezar Has Spotlight in British Open

By RONALD THOMPSON

BIRKDALE, England (AP)—Wiscracking Joe Ezar, a sun-tanned Floridian who can make a golf ball almost sit up and talk, today was the most talked-about American in the British Open championship, even with Arnold Palmer around.

Joe loves to play trick shots for fun—and his special brand of wizardry shot him into position as the top American scorer after the first qualifying round of the championship Monday.

He was even ahead of Palmer, the man the fans turn out by the hundreds to watch whenever he plays.

Ezar, from Miami, had a 70 on the 6,603-yard hillside course over which both Palmer and his top rival, Gary Player of South Africa, scored 71. But nobody seriously considers Ezar a threat to the two leading money winners of the American circuit, least of all Joe himself.

Palmer, Player, Ezar, and about 350 other golfers from 19 countries set out Tuesday on the second qualifying round that will whittle the huge field down to 120 to compete in the play-off stages of the championship Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The cut-off stage is expected to be 148 or 149 for the 36 qualifying holes. Player and Palmer are both bound to make it—and so, it seems is rugged Joe Ezar. One of the most relaxed men in professional golf, he intrigued the local fans both with his wiscracking manner and his no-nonsense style of play.

Ezar never takes a practice swing or waggles the club around before hitting. One moment the ball is there—the next, bang, it's gone. The crowds find this a pleasant change from the painstaking way in which most pros play their shots.

Pender Is Favored Over Downs

LONDON (AP)—Terry Downes, who rates a distinct underdog to Paul Pender in their world middleweight title bout at Wembley Indoor Stadium tonight got a tip from the American's former manager.

"Good luck Terry" read a cable Downes received from Mohny Buckley of Boston. "Stay close to Pender. Make him fight three minutes of every round and keep him on the ropes. I sure hope you win by a K.O."

Despite Buckley's rating interest, Pender, 31, rates a 7-4 favorite in his fourth defense of his share of the 160-pound title although this is his first bout in Britain.

The rangy champ from Brookline, Mass., recognized by Massachusetts, New York and Europe as the middleweight king, has won 14 straight bouts over the last 4½ years and stopped Downs on cuts in 7 rounds at Boston earlier this year.

The fight is scheduled to begin around 3 p.m. Eastern Standard Time.

Dodgers Will Have to Do Without Don

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Los Angeles Dodgers trailing the Cincinnati Reds by five games, will have to get along without Don Drysdale until next Tuesday. The 6-foot-6 pitcher has drawn a $100 fine and a five-day suspension, effective Thursday, for violating the National League rule against throwing at a batter.

Warren Giles, president of the National League, handed down the ruling Monday.

Drysdale was ejected from Sunday's game with Cincinnati—won by the Reds 14-3—after he hit Frank Robinson, the Reds' right fielder, on the hand in the sixth inning. Dusty Boggess, the plate umpire, had warned Drysdale earlier when he sent Robinson into the dirt to avoid a pitch. The warning carried an automatic $50 fine. When Don hit Robinson, Boggess threw him out of the game.

In cases when, in an umpire's judgment, a pitcher deliberately throws at a batter's person the league president takes over. After and discussing the case with E. (Buzzy) Bavasi, Dodger general manager, Giles announced the ruling.

Bavasi said the loss of Drysdale was a tough blow for the Dodgers at this time when they have been dropping behind the Reds. He claimed the tall right-hander would miss two turns.

Few Teams Ahead on Attendance

NEW YORK (AP)—Only Cincinnati, Detroit, New York and Kansas City are ahead of their 1960 home attendance figures at the 1961 season's halfway mark, an Associated Press survey showed today.

The decreases range from 290,000 by the Chicago White Sox to 16,000 by the Washington Senators. The other deficits are Los Angeles Dodgers, 255,000; San Francisco, 254,000; Milwaukee 221,000; Philadelphia 195,000; Boston, 163,000; Pittsburgh 143,000; Cleveland 131,000; Baltimore, 115,000; Chicago Cubs 114,000; and St. Louis 90,000.

Cincinnati is up 9,000. Detroit 47,000. New York 28,000 and Kansas City 2,100.

The over-all major league attendance through Sunday's games was 9,799,823 compared with 10,615,524 in 1960. That's a drop of eight per cent from last season. The National League is 179,934, 120 per cent, under 1960.

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—Unofficial returns today showed the majority of Turkish voters approved the new constitution in the first such referendum in Turkey's history.

Counting continued on in several provinces, but it was estimated that at least 60 per cent of those voting cast white ballots Sunday approving the constitution, second in the Turkish Republic's 33 years.

Heating millions of new homes is one reason America's need for energy will double by 1980

Every 30 seconds in the next 20 years, another family will start using gas. There will be more homes... bigger homes. As our population climbs, need for energy rises even faster. And more people mean ever-higher energy demands by the industries that serve them. By 1980, the nation will require twice the energy it consumes today.

Where will it come from? Much will come from present energy sources, some from new ones. Wherever produced, a large share of energy in its most efficient and usable forms will be transported via pipelines. Texas Eastern's natural gas pipelines, which stretch from the Mexican border to the Atlantic Seaboard, have capacity to fuel thousands of factories and heat millions of homes... Our Little Big Inch pipeline system, largest of its kind, delivers liquid petroleum products from Gulf Coast refineries to Midwest markets. Looking to the future, Texas Eastern is growing and diversifying today to meet tomorrow's energy needs.
